THE NEW SPACE RACE: WHAT'S DIFFERENT?

01

1. Expense and Capital: Funding large space missions is still difficult even for countries like India even though private companies are lowering costs. International collaborations and efficient budgeting are essential for overcoming this obstacle.

02

2. The debris in space: The issue of space debris is getting worse as more satellites and missions are launched. It is now more crucial than ever to have a global strategy to control and minimize space junk.

03

3. Ethical and geopolitical issues: Resource exploitation military use and privatization are some of the new moral and legal concerns that emerge as space becomes more commercialized. Working together internationally is essential to addressing these issues.

The era of space exploration has begun and countries and private enterprises from all over the world are fighting for supremacy in the last frontier. The competition is fuelled by both state-run organizations and private businesses unlike the space race during the Cold War. As technology develops the race to explore the Moon Mars and beyond is about building a sustainable future in space rather than just boosting national pride. India is a major participant in this international space race thanks to its expanding space capabilities.

BEZOS AND BLUE ORIGIN

In order to make space accessible to the general public Jeff Bezos Blue Origin is focused on developing reusable rockets and growing space tourism. Millions of people will be able to live and work in space in the future according to Bezos.

BRANSON AND VIRGIN GALACTIC

By investigating commercial suborbital flights Richard Bransons Virgin Galactic is making space tourism more accessible to those who can afford it.

ELON MUSK'S VISION FOR SPACEX

The new era of space exploration has evolved into a dynamic competition involving both nations and private enterprises, moving beyond the state-run rivalry of the Cold War. This race is not just about national pride but about building a sustainable future in space, with countries like India emerging as significant players due to their innovative and cost-effective approaches. However, challenges such as the immense costs of space missions, the growing problem of space debris, and the ethical and geopolitical complexities of commercializing space highlight the need for international collaboration. Major contributors like Jeff Bezos' Blue Origin envision millions living and working in space through reusable rockets and space tourism, while Richard Branson's Virgin Galactic explores commercial suborbital flights for elite travelers. NASA's Artemis program is set to return humans to the Moon by 2025, paving the way for long-term lunar presence and future Mars missions.

INDIA'S SPACE PROGRAM – ISRO

ISRO has achieved global recognition with milestones like Mangalyaan, Chandrayaan missions, and the Chandrayaan-3 Moon landing. Future plans include the Gaganyaan human spaceflight, Chandrayaan-4 for further lunar exploration, and expanding Mars missions.

NASA AND THE PROGRAM FOR ARTEMIS

With plans to create a long-term lunar presence NASA's Artemis mission is set to send humans back to the moon by 2025. An important milestone in human space exploration is the Artemis program's goal of acting as a launchpad for upcoming Mars missions.

Gukesh D. (Gukesh Dommaraju) is a young and highly talented Indian chess champion. Born on December 29, 2006, in Chennai, India.

His Most Recent Accomplishment

The 2024 World Chess Championship was held in November–December 2024 between Gukesh and Ding Liren. Gukesh scored three wins against two wins for Ding, and nine draws in the 14 classical rounds of the tournament. He won the 14th and final match on 12 December 2024, and as a result, the World Chess Championship by a scoreline of $7\frac{1}{2}$ – $6\frac{1}{2}$. Gukesh: "I'm determined to keep pushing myself."

"In a world of calculated moves, Gukesh has emerged as the king, showcasing that brilliance and hard work can checkmate all odds."

THE ELEPHANT'S ROPE: A LESSON IN SELF-BELIEF

A gentleman was walking through an elephant camp, and he spotted that the elephants weren't being kept in cages or held by the use of chains. All that was "holding them back" from escaping the camp was a small piece of rope tied to one of their legs.

As the man gazed upon the elephants, he was completely confused as to why the elephants didn't just use strength to break the rope and escape the camp. They could easily have done so, but instead, they didn't try to at all.

Curious and wanting to know the answer, he asked a trainer nearby why the elephants were just standing there and never tried to escape.

The trainer replied:

"When they are very young and much smaller, we use the same size rope to tie them, and at that age, it's enough to hold them. As they grow up, they are conditioned to believe they cannot break away. They believe the rope can still hold them, so they never try to break free."

The only reason that the elephants weren't breaking free and escaping from the camp was that they adopted the belief that it just wasn't possible.

Moral of the story:

No matter how much the world tries to hold you back, always continue the belief that what you want to achieve is possible. Believing you can become successful is the most important step in actually achieving it.

The Addiction to Screens

-Reels and Short-Term Pleasure:

The rise of social media has led to an increase in screen time, with many of us glued to our phones, indulging in endless reels. While these provide temporary enjoyment, they can diminish our attention span and focus.

-Wasted Time on Apps:

Apps like Instagram, Amazon, and Zomato keep us scrolling mindlessly, distracting us from our studies and work. This addiction to technology has become so prevalent that we often forget life exists beyond our screens.

-The Cost of Convenience:

Major companies invest millions in creating addictive experiences, keeping us engaged day and night. It's essential to recognize this manipulation and take control of our time.

Conclusion

A Call to Action

It's time to wake up and reclaim our lives:

- Limit Screen Time: Set boundaries for your device usage.

- Focus on Healthy Eating: Choose nutritious options over junk food.

- Prioritize Work and Productivity: Cultivate habits that promote focus and dedication.

Let's work together to make positive changes before it's too late. Our future depends on it!

The Decline of Physical Health

-Junk Food Culture:

Our diets are increasingly filled with unhealthy options like pizza and burgers, contributing to a decline in our overall health.

-Longevity Concerns:

A few decades ago, people frequently lived past 100 years. Today, reaching even 60 seems challenging for many, primarily due to poor lifestyle choices.

-Addiction to Substances:

The allure of alcohol and smoking, often perceived as "cool," is slowly leading to self-destruction. We must rethink our relationship with these substances for better health.
